

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In magnetic resonance tomography apparatus and method for determining the field strength of high-frequency pulses which are emitted during a magnetic resonance measurement by the antenna, a magnetic resonance signal excited by a radio-frequency pulse or a radio-frequency pulse sequence is measured, and a phase position of the magnetic resonance signal is determined. Based on this phase position, the field strength is then determined.

CH1\ 4074643.1